Maker SPACE

Guang Ming College Makerspace is a venue for learning, fabrication, and digital innovation for the students, faculty, and staff - and, eventually, communities around Guang Ming College. Established for the GMC community to actualize their imagination through the use of the 3D printers, wood and acrylic engraver, and other machines available at the Makerspace, it is a venue where science, arts, and technology meet and is open for students, faculty and staff to play, create, mentor and invent. Moreover, our MakerSpace uses 21st Century technology but interfaces with heritage and culture, promoting traditions like weaving and pottery.

About Guang Ming College

OUR FOUNDER

Guang Ming College is the first Philippine college part of the Fo Guang Shan International University Consortium founded by Venerable Master Hsing Yun. Other colleges and universities are located in Taiwan, Hong Kong, Australia, and the U.S.A.

Venerable Master Hsing Yun was born in Chiangsu Province, China in 1927 and entered a monastery near Nanjing at age twelve. He was tonsured by Venerable Master Zhi Kai in Qixia Temple, Nanjing, with Dajue Temple in Yixing, Jiangsu, as his ancestral temple. He was fully ordained in 1941, and is the 48th patriarch of the Linchi (Rinzai) Ch'an school. In 1949, amid the turbulence of the civil war, he went to Taiwan.

In Taiwan, he began fulfilling his long-held vow of promoting Humanistic Buddhism. In 1967, he founded the Fo Guang Shan Monastery in Taiwan. Having never received any form of formal education, it is the most fervent wish of Venerable Master Hsing Yun that all be provided with the opportunity and access he was denied. With his genuine commitment to fostering places of education, he holds true to his pledge to "impart wisdom to self, bequeath a university to society, confer merits to future generations, and bestow accomplishments to the public."

The Fo Guang Shan International University Consortium

Starting in 1991, Venerable Master Hsing Yun established the University of the West in the United States, Fo Guang and Nanhua Universities in Taiwan, and Nan Tien Institute in Australia. On July 17, 2011, the Presidents of these four universities launched the Fo Guang Shan International University Consortium. This set forth Taiwan's first international collaborative system for universities and a milestone for higher education. The Fo Guang Shan International University Consortium includes Fo Guang University (Taiwan), Nanhua University (Taiwan), Tsung Lin University (Taiwan), Nan Tien Institute (Australia), Center for Humanistic Buddhism, Chinese University of Hong Kong, University of the West (USA).

Since its inception, the Fo Guang Shan International University Consortium has initiated numerous teacher and student exchange programs. Furthermore, students are provided opportunities for cross-enrollment, distance-learning, and postgraduate degrees at partner universities.
