2025 Call for Research Papers on Literacy
Guidelines for Submission

Rationale and Background

The Literacy Coordinating Council (LCC) 2025 Call for Research Papers on Literacy is a strategic initiative designed to foster evidence-based policies and programs that advance literacy development in the Philippines. This initiative aligns with the Department of Education's (DepEd) Basic Education Research Agenda, which underscores the importance of research in strengthening the country's education system. By encouraging scholarly inquiry into literacy issues, the LCC aims to generate actionable insights that will enhance literacy policies, programs, and interventions nationwide.

Furthermore, this initiative is anchored on the LCC's Blueprint for Action, which serves as the national framework for improving literacy in the country. The Blueprint highlights the need for continuous research to identify effective strategies, address persistent challenges, and promote inclusive literacy programs that cater to diverse learners, particularly marginalized and disadvantaged communities.

The 2025 Call for Research Papers also supports Secretary Sonny Angara's 5-Point Reform Agenda, which prioritizes enhancing foundational skills, improving teacher quality, ensuring learning continuity, fostering education innovation, and strengthening governance and accountability in the education sector. By promoting research that addresses these key reform areas, the LCC contributes to the overall goal of enhancing literacy and education outcomes in the country.

Through this initiative, the LCC seeks to engage researchers, educators, policymakers, and other stakeholders in meaningful discourse that will lead to policy development and sustainable literacy development efforts. The insights generated from this research will serve as a catalyst for reforms that empower learners and create a more literate and educated Filipino society.

The LCC has issued two Calls in the past. In 2020, the theme was "Sustaining Community-Based Literacy Programs in Times of Crisis," while in 2023, it focused on "Building a Culture of Literacy: The Power of Communities as Catalysts for Literacy Development."

This year, the LCC will hold the 2025 Call for Research Papers on Literacy with the theme "Bridging Literacy Gaps: Innovations in Formal and Nonformal Education."

The 2025 Call for Research Papers on Literacy seeks to collect evidence and policy recommendations to support literacy development and informed decision-making in:

- improving foundational literacy skills in schools and community learning centers through innovative interventions
- assessing the impact of various literacy interventions and scale up successful models that demonstrate measurable improvements in literacy outcomes;
- providing relevant and quality learning materials, digital tools, and capacity building opportunities to equip learners with functional literacy both from formal and non-formal setting, especially in marginalized groups, in improving their reading, writing, and comprehension skills; and
- promoting active community engagement in supporting literacy efforts in schools and community learning centers.
